redemption bourbon, cinnamon syrup, black walnut bitters, candied walnut greca negroni 12

empress 1908 gin, roots diktamo, otto’s athens vermouth, orange

Empress 1908 gin has a natural blue color that comes from herbal infusions among the botanicals; it’s not juniper-forward but, rather, gentle and sophisticated, blending wonderfully with Roots Diktamo (an amaro-like herb liqueur from Greece) and Otto’s, a Greek vermouth with hints of rose petal cloudy sunday 12

litchfield bourbon, roots kanela, roots diktamo, lime juice

The name of the drink is taken for the song "Sinnefiasmeni Kyriaki (Cloudy Sunday)" which was written during the brutal Nazi Occupation of Greece.

The song talks about the singer's wait for the clouds to pass, a reference to the occupation. The slight bitterness of the Diktamo represents the suffering of the Greeks at the time, with the sweetness of the Roots Kanela (a sophisticated cinnamon tincture) representing better times ahead. The lime gives it the cloud, and the bourbon represents the strong character of the people that helped them to survive the occupation.

the socratic method 12

litchfield bourbon, roots rakomelo, fresh sage

Sage (for wisdom) is gently muddled and mixed with locally-produced bourbon from Litchfield Distillery and Roots Rakomelo, a honey-infused Greek grappa (don’t let the word grappa fool you, this isn’t fire water, it’s an elegant, smooth spirit)
